Fed FOMC (June 16-17):

Warsh's debut — held at 3.5%-3.75%, hawkish dot plot. 9 of 18 officials project at least one 2026 rate hike.

Rate Hike Probability:

Markets now pricing ~50% odds of a 25bp hike in September. Rate cut thesis has been retired.

Iran-US Tensions:

Friday's Geneva talks cancelled. Trump threatened fresh strikes. Hormuz traffic remains below pre-war levels.

S&P 500 +0.93% / Nasdaq +2.43%:

Markets held up despite hawkish Fed. Narrow leadership — AI and energy. Breadth weak at ~58%.

KEY TAKEAWAY

Warsh inherited a Fed still above its 2% target after years of sticky inflation. His first meeting sent a clear signal: no cuts coming. The debate has shifted from 'when do we cut?' to 'do we hike?' This is the macro environment crypto, gold, and equities must navigate.

OIL & GEOPOLITICS: IRAN-US CONFLICT

Ongoing

- Strait of Hormuz handles ~20% of global oil and significant LNG — IEA called the closure the 'largest supply disruption in history'.
- Saudi Arabia and UAE rerouted some volumes via overland pipelines. IEA coordinated a record release. These buffers are limited.
- Friday's Geneva talks cancelled after Trump threatened fresh strikes on Hezbollah. Oil is ticking higher today on that news.
- Sticky energy-driven inflation (CPI 4.2% YoY May) is one reason Warsh can't cut. The two stories — Iran and the Fed — are directly linked.

CONTEXT: HOW DID WE GET HERE?

- May spot ETF outflows: $2.3B — largest monthly outflow of 2026, steepest since November 2025.
- Week of June 5: $2.7B ETF outflows + BTC broke $62K support, triggering $1.5B in long liquidations in one session.
- Bitcoin has since recovered to ~$63,800 — but has not reclaimed either the 50-day MA ($65,750) or 200-day MA ($65,200).
- Markets are macro-correlated: the FOMC signal + dollar strength + Iran/oil narrative are all weighing on risk assets including crypto.

Historical accum. zone

Historically bullish

HEADWINDS

- ETH spot ETF outflows: -$401M in May (3rd largest monthly outflow ever)
- Trading below all major EMAs — no momentum confirmation
- ETH/BTC at 0.027 suggests market prefers BTC in a risk-off environment
- Glamsterdam base fees down ~50% — short-term fee revenue sacrificed for scale

TAILWINDS (MEDIUM-TERM)

- Glamsterdam upgrade (largest since Merge) in final devnet — all 10 EIPs included. Mainnet H2 2026.
- BitMine holds 5.62M ETH (4.66% of supply), $4.7B staked. Smart money accumulating.
- ~500K ETH left exchanges in week ending June 14 — classic supply removal
- MVRV below 0.8: historically this is where long-term holders accumulate; strong hands buying
- Standard Chartered: $4,000 year-end target on tokenized RWA demand

01

Thursday PCE Print

The Week's Defining Data Point

- May PCE YoY est. +4.1% (energy-driven); Core PCE YoY est. +3.4%
- Hot print: DXY strengthens, Sept hike priced in harder, $62K BTC re-test
- Soft print: Rate hike odds fade, dollar softens, risk assets can breathe

02

Iran-US Negotiations

Oil & Inflation Wild Card

- Geneva talks collapsed Friday — Trump threatening fresh strikes
- Strait of Hormuz still below pre-war traffic levels
- Any deterioration: oil spikes, inflation expectations re-ignite, risk-off

03

Bitcoin $62K Support

The Crypto Line in the Sand

- BTC grinding at ~$63,800, near 200-day MA (~$65,200)
- ETF flows need to turn positive for sustained recovery thesis
- Watch: ETH/BTC ratio and any Glamsterdam testnet news for ETH catalyst
